Texto e exercícios adaptados do livro ‘New English Point’ 1ed. 1999.

We asked 100 guys:

- Have you ever cheated on a girlfriend?

No 62% ; Sim 38%

-If yes, did you confess?

No 68% ; Sim 32%

Guy talk:

If a girl cheated on you, what would you do?

Quetzal Saunders – “I don’t couple up with a girl unless I’m really into her, so I wouldn’t just end it. Hopefully, I’d be able to learn to trust her again.”

Scott Stalker – “I’d need some time away to get over what she’d done. But I don’t think I’d rule out trying to get back on track.”

Tommy Planson – “I’d have to dump her, ‘cause I think that for a relationship to fly, both people have to be loyal.”

Ryan Kopke – “I’d be upset, and we’d have to talk about why she’d cheated. But I’d give her another chance. Everyone deserves one.”

Steve Schwartz – “If we were in a serious relationship and she cheated, I’d probably be too hurt to continue on with her.”

Andrew Keegan – “I think I’d need to take some time to be by myself and absorb the info. Then, I’d want to talk to her to find out why it happened and whether or not we should try to work it out.”

Cheat sheet

Can him: If you were dating exclusively and you caught him with someone else, dump him! “If you stay with him, he’s likely to cheat again”, says Gina Rayfield, Ph.D., a Livingstone, NJ, psychologist, “because he’s probably not mature enough to handle a relationship”.

Keep him: If he’s generally a good boy and he begs for another chance, Dr. Rayfield says you might wanna give him one more try. But you may have to deal with his future flirting. Tell him he’s got one more strike before he’s out.

Think about it: If it wasn’t clear that the two of you were a committed couple, consider that he might not have realized (dhu!) that chasing another chica was such a major no-no. As Dr. Rayfield advises, “Now is a good lime to decide what each of you wants from the relationship, so there will be no surprises.”
